A Story That Transcends Time and Language

Once upon a time, in a faraway kingdom, a prince embarked on a quest to find a true princess to be his bride. After countless encounters with false pretenders, his hopes began to dwindle. But fate had a different plan when a storm arrived at the castle gates, bringing with it a drenched and bedraggled young woman.

Claiming to be a princess, the girl was welcomed into the castle. To test her true identity, the queen devised an ingenious plan: she placed a tiny pea beneath twenty mattresses and twenty feather beds. If the girl could feel the pea through these layers, her sensitivity would prove her royal lineage.

As night fell, the princess lay upon the elaborate bedding, unaware of the hidden test beneath her. The next morning, she awoke with a complaint—she had not slept a wink, for she could feel something hard beneath her. And so, the princess's true identity was revealed.
